April 2021

League Fundraisers Are Back in 2021

With COVID-19 vaccinations in full swing, it's expected that fundraising events will be back on the calendar later this year.

With that in mind, League Centers for Independent Living in Omaha, Southwest Iowa, and Lincoln are planning on having golf event fundraisers again this year. The events were cancelled last year due to the pandemic and its human and economic costs.

The Lincoln CIL will hold its event on Thursday, Sept. 16, at the Highlands Golf Course in Lincoln. For more details, see the box on page 5.

The Norfolk CIL plans to resume its Giving Project, a fundraiser that recognizes local businesses for their charitable donations.

Proceeds from each benefit event will go to its respective CILs, helping them provide Independent Living services for people with disabilities.

Support Nonprofits on Give to Lincoln Day

Online charitable giving days are a great opportunity to show support for local nonprofits like the League of Human Dignity.

The 10th annual Give To Lincoln Day starts at 12 a.m. on Tuesday, May 25, and runs throughout the day. The event is presented by the Lincoln Community Foundation and several local sponsors, including West Gate Bank.

During the annual giving day, residents go online and give during the 24 hour period and donate to the nonprofits serving Lincoln and Lancaster County.

Donations primarily will be made online at www.givetolincoln.com from 12 a.m. to 11:59

p.m. on May 25. But the foundation also accepts in-person donations. As the current COVID-19 pandemic and resulting precautions linger, it remains to be seen how in-person giving will be affected again this year.

Each donation will be matched proportionally from a $500,000 challenge match pool.

Links soon will be available on the League's website, leagueofhuman-dignity.com and Facebook page. And follow the League on Twitter (@league68508) for the most up-to-date information.

The League has participated in each of the past nine Give To Lincoln Days.

Hello and happy spring everyone! It seems like winter was even longer this year. The cold and COVID-19 combined to make more of an impact than usual.

We hear so much about COVID-19 and all of the bad repercussions. People have been isolated, mental illness has impacted more people, negative health and economic issue have all combined to make the past 12 months under COVID-19 very dire.

It is hard to see any positive outcomes over the past year under COVID-19, however there have been some "silver linings" during this time period.

- Businesses are moving away from the centrally organized model of employment toward new types of hybrid, flexible workplaces. This has been very beneficial for workers with disabilities. The work from home model has been instrumental in allowing gainful employment for individuals with disabilities. Many individuals on the Autism Spectrum have found that working at home is a good fit. Also, individuals who experience physical barriers to transportation have found this alleviated by the home-as-office model.
- People have been forced to slow down and take stock in what really matters. Going to movies, restaurants and stores has been replaced with gathering with neighbors and family—socially distanced of course. Family and friends have become more important than ever and bonds have been strengthened.
- Participation in outdoor activities has increased.

Some households have even been better off financially as many activities that can be done safely are less costly. According to Allen Jetmore, MD, "there have not been so many kids fishing since the 1950's". More people are enjoying nature and the outdoors.

- An increased number of people adopted shelter cats and dogs during the pandemic. This certainly helped all of those poor lonely animals waiting for their "forever" home as well as alleviated loneliness among their owners.
- As a society, the pandemic has brought an increased focus on, and boosting of wellness efforts. The pandemic has exposed just how pervasive our struggles are with anxiety, depression and substance abuse. Having been stigmatized for far too long, we are now talking much more openly about mental health and wellness. The "silver lining here is how people are sharing, seeking out support, and learning new strategies for living and thriving," according to Katie O'Keefe, Licensed Professional Counselor.

So, even though the pandemic has presented us with ongoing challenges and disruptions, we can offer ourselves a perspective shift by looking at the things that have actually changed for the better and for which we are grateful.

Stay safe!

Pandemic Relief to Reach Disability Community

The latest COVID-19 relief package includes billions of dollars for special education and disability services, as well as stimulus payments for many individuals with disabilities who haven't previously qualified.

President Joe Biden signed the $1.9 trillion American Rescue Plan into law March 11.

The $1.9 trillion plan includes $12.67 billion for Medicaid home and community-based services over the next year. The funding will go to states in the form of a 10 percent increase in the federal government's share of spending on the program, starting in April and extending through March 2022.

States will have significant discretion in how the extra money is used. The funds could go toward helping people with disabilities get off of waiting lists, increasing pay for direct support professionals or helping programs reopen.

Iowa Restricts Early Voting

Iowa Gov. Kim Reynolds has signed into law a bill designed to make it more difficult for Iowans to vote early.

The legislation was backed exclusively by Republican lawmakers and targets an aspect of Democratic campaigns that was particularly effective in 2020 – mail-in or absentee voting. Republican lawmakers argued the law is needed to fight voter fraud, even though Iowa has no history of voter fraud and there was record turnout in 2020.

Among other things, the new law reduces the mail-in voting period to 18 days from 29 days; begins mail-in ballot request period 70 days in advance of an election instead of 120; makes the Secretary of State's directives enforceable as law; and allows only a voter's immediate family, member of their household or caregiver to deliver a completed ballot to either drop box, mail, or auditor office. The law eliminates "home rule" for county auditors and strips them of many duties, as well as making anything but strict adherence to laws and Secretary of State directives a class "D" felony. Drop boxes are limited to one location per county.

The law became effective immediately.

Cox Enables Eye Control of its Contour Video Guide

Cox has unveiled a new feature that allows people with disabilities to control their cable TV with their eyes. The Accessible Web Remote for Contour gives people who have lost fine motor skills – whether from degenerative conditions or paralysis – the ability to browse the video guide with a glance.

Specifically, a free web-based remote control is navigable using various assistive technologies that cable customers own, including eye gaze hardware and software, switch controls, and sip-and-puff systems, which the user controls by gently blowing into a tube. Eye-tracking technology gives people living with conditions like paraplegia, Parkinson's disease and amyotrophic lateral sclerosis (ALS) the same access to their TVs as customers with the latest edition of Contour.

Customers can now visit <https://webremote.cox.com> to sync their device and begin changing channels, set a recording, search for programming within the Contour guide, and access integrated streaming apps all with a glance of their eyes.

“Crip Camp” and the Early Disability Rights Movement

The new Netflix documentary, “Crip Camp: A Disability Revolution,” tells the story of teenagers with disabilities who attended an upstate New York summer camp in 1971 and who would go on to become powerful leaders in the disability rights movement.

Correspondent Rita Braver talks with Jim LeBrecht, who, 50 years after attending the camp, collaborated with Emmy-winning filmmaker Nicole Newnham to make the documentary – which has been nominated for an Academy Award. Braver also talks with activist Judy Heumann about how the camp's experience inspired her in advocating for the Americans with Disabilities Act.
